FOR A MORE INCLUSIVE SOCIETY

“ There should be more wheelchair-friendly options at venues for work, play and learning. For example, malls can install portable metal ramps that can be laid out when necessary. ”

CREATE A FLEXIBLE WORK CULTURE

“ More employers should offer flexible working arrangements for those with accessibility issues. For example, data analytics is a deskbound job. If we have the skills although the office is not wheelchair-friendly, give us the option to work from home, and not reject our application. ”

“ Employers can be more open-minded towards persons of disability. Most of us have the mental capacity to do more than simple data-entry work. Consider our applications based on our formal training, and individual passions. ”

MY DREAM FOR THE FUTURE

“ I dream of making my own ice-cream, and starting an F&B business. But many such courses do not have wheelchair-accessible facilities. For a truly inclusive society, I believe concessions should be made for the wheelchair-bound for most, if not all activities. ”
